

MERCHANT PUSHES PEDDLER AWAY AND IS ARRESTED FOR MURDER

Altercation in Front of Store
Leads to Tragedy and Threats of Crowd.

Abraham Finkle, a pushcart peddler with a stock of notions, established himself in front of the dry goods store of Samuel Horowitz, at No. 234 Second Avenue, to-day. Horowitz ordered Finkle to leave. Finkle refused and an altercation resulted, in the course of which Horowitz either struck or pushed Finkle.

The pushcart man fell in the gutter and lay motionless. Patrolman McGowan summoned an ambulance, and Dr. Ingraham of Reception Hospital pronounced Finkle dead.

There was no apparent wound on Finkle's head or body. Dr. Ingraham said an autopsy will be necessary to establish whether he died of heart failure brought on by excitement or a fractured skull. He was forty-eight years old and lived at No. 232 East One Hundredth Street.

McGowan arrested Horowitz on a charge of homicide. A man named Ross told the policeman he saw Horowitz strike Finkle over the head with two padlocks hanging on a rope. The padlocks were found in Horowitz's store. Other witnesses said they saw Horowitz push Finkle.

Finkle's wife happened along just as the ambulance surgeon pronounced her husband dead. Her lamentations assembled a big crowd and many threats were made against Horowitz. McGowan took his prisoner into a drug store and telephoned for help. Three patrolmen responded and guarded Horowitz from the crowd that followed him to the East One Hundred and Fourth Street Station.

WILSON INSISTS ON SHIP PURCHASE BILL

President Intimates Extra Session
Will Be Called If Measure
Is Not Passed.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—The Government ship purchase bill must be written into the statute books, according to President Wilson's own mandate to-day. While professing confidence that this measure will succeed, he indicated that an extra session for its consideration will be called if Congress does not now make it a law.

He told callers to-day that it is absolutely imperative that the Government have more shipping facilities. And while he held that other measures would not necessitate a special session, he plainly showed that his mind is set on what he has termed the "single track" for passage of this particular bill.

THE MEN'S STORE OPENS AT 7:30 TOMORROW (WEDNESDAY) TO USHER IN

The Greatest Sale in the History of Men's Clothing

The John Wanamaker Store

We don't like superlatives. They have been much misused; have lost a great deal of their dictionary meaning. But when we tried to avoid using them in telling the news of this Sale we were "up a tree." We could find only one phrase to fit the facts—the greatest sale in the history of men's clothing.

This Is the First Annual National Clearaway of Men's Better Suits and Overcoats

From the Great National Clothing Manufacturers and from Our Own Stocks

5,420 brand new suits and overcoats, just unpacked, from the leading clothing manufacturers of America; and 7,223 fancy suits and overcoats from the fine regular Wanamaker stocks—all that remain.

Ha! Ha! Ha!

Everybody will be pleased—the men who made those fine suits and overcoats, we who offer them, and the men who get them and make the real savings that go with them. One of the hundreds of men who wait for the Annual Wanamaker Clearaway, asked us about it the other day. We told him we had broadened it; how, months ago when the manufacturing tailors were busy on this winter's orders, we had gone to the best of them, looked over their fabrics, picked the ones we wanted, and said to them—"We'll take whatever you have left over of those fabrics when you've filled your winter orders; make them up into suits—or overcoats—the Wanamaker way; take your time about it; only get them to us the first of the year; how they were mightily pleased to have part of their surplus so easily provided for, and we got the terms we wanted; and how our customers were to get all the benefits. He was a most tickled man when he left, vowing to be here Wednesday morning at 7:30.

12,643 Men's Suits and Overcoats

This is the largest number ever set out for sale under one roof, on one floor (the street floor); a selected stock, representative of the better clothes America has produced this season; honestly made, serviceable fabrics, fashionably cut, a very wide choice of patterns; $355,485 worth, figured on the basis of our regular prices, to be offered for $223,337.75, a total saving of $132,147.25.

(See tables below; some men will save $50.50 on one purchase each; average saving is over $10.)

There are 6,223 Suits
